

Hike Sedona with Friends of the Forest:

Wednesday, September 20th, 8 a.m., Photo Walk with J.K. Lovelett. Grab your camera and enjoy a leisurely stroll through a red wonderland often called the most beautiful place on earth. This outdoor activity will inspire you to learn more about using your camera to capture top notch rock landscape images.

To register and for location information, call 928-203-2903.

Thursday, September 21st, 9 a.m., Geology Walk with Chris Weld. Sedona's legendary red rocks evolved over millions of years, as wind and water shaped and sculpted the land. Sedona is located at the southern escarpment of the Colorado Plateau, a vast upland extending into the four corner states, Arizona, Utah, Colorado and New Mexico. Discover more of Sedona's fascinating geologic story through this moderate hiking adventure. To register for location information, call 928-203-2903.

All events are free. Sponsored by Friends of the Forest, U.S. Forest Service Red Rock Ranger District, and the Arizona Natural History Association. Programs may be cancelled due to inclement weather.

Sedona
Friends of the Forest

